
DEVELOPMENT OF
ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESSES FOR
LEADERS OF GOVERNMENT
SECONDARY SCHOOLS IN QASSIM
REGION IN THE LIGHT OF THE
ELECTRONIC MANAGEMENT
APPROACH: SUGGESTED PERCEPTION

*Dr Al Adham Al-Lwaish Al Shemari

Abstract:

The study aimed to know the reality of the practice of leaders of government secondary schools in the Qassim region for administrative operations in the light of the electronic management approach, and to reveal the difficulties facing the practice of leaders of government secondary schools in the Qassim region for administrative operations in the light of the entrance to electronic management, as well as to identify the most important requirements for that, and provide a perception A proposal to develop administrative processes for leaders of government secondary schools in the Qassim region in the light of the entrance to electronic management. For the purpose of achieving the objectives of the study, this study relied on the descriptive survey approach, and the study tool applied the questionnaire to The academic year 1440/1441 AH, the study sample consisted of all school leaders due to the limited number, and the number of questionnaires returned and valid for statistical analysis reached (99) questionnaires with a percentage of 75% of the study community (132) leaders; the study reached a set of results, the most important of which are: - The general arithmetic mean of the opinions of the study members on the reality of the practice of leaders of government secondary schools in the Qassim region for administrative operations in the light of the entrance to electronic management at a moderate degree, and that the general arithmetic average of the views of the study members of the difficulties facing the leadership of government secondary schools in the Qassim region to develop the process Administrative administration in light of the entrance of electronic management to a large degree, and that the general arithmetic mean of the opinions of study members about the most important requirements for leaders of government secondary schools in the Qassim region to develop administrative operations in the light of the electronic management approach to a large degree.

* Associate Professor of Educational Administration - College of Education
- University of Hail.

Keywords: Development, Administrative Processes, High School Leaders, Electronic Management.