

---

---

PSYCHOLOGICAL HARDINESS AND ITS RELATION TO TO THE LEVEL
OF AMBITION AND PSYCHOLOGICAL HAPPINESS FOR BLIND STUDENTS (A
PSYCHOMETRIC – CLINICAL STUDY)

*Mrs. Hager Gamal AbdOElnaser Elyamani**

*Dr. Sahar Mansour El Kattawy** - Dr. Ayman Helmy Aweida****

---

---

Abstract:

The current research aimed to identify Psychological Hardiness and Its Relation to the Psychological Happiness for Blind injured students and Blind since birth students in the middle school and high school in Al Noor schools for the Blind, To achieve this goal, the research was carried out on a sample of (108) Blind student Distribute (30) Blind student for Exploratory study and (78) Blind student for Basic sample Divided into (49) Blind injured students and (29) Blind since birth students. the descriptive method was used in

---

* Researcher, Faculty of Education - Department of Mental Health - Suez University.

** Associate Professor of Mental Health – Faculty of Education – Suez University.

*** Lecturer of Mental Health - Faculty of Education – Suez University.

the current study, the following tools have been applied : psychological hardiness scale (preparation: researcher), psychological Happiness scale (preparation: El Shahawy, 2014). And some statistical methods were used for analyzing data, such as pearson correlation coefficient, Alpha Cronbach test. The research results showed that:

1. There is statistically significant correlation at level (0.01) between The psychological hardiness, and The psychological happiness for Blind since birth students.
2. There is statistically significant correlation at level (0.05) between The psychological happiness and The psychological hardiness for Blind injured students.
3. The psychological happiness predict by The psychological hardiness for Blind since birth students.
- 1- The psychological happiness don.t predict by The psychological hardiness for Blind injured students.

Key words:

(psychological happiness - psychological hardiness - Blind injured students - Blind since birth students).